The 2016 exhibition evolves from the previous exhibitions at St. Peter's Church, Marlborough and the Wiltshire Museum in Devizes, which attracted a record number of visitors and had many positive comments on trip advisor.

The multi-media display will feature a large selection of high quality photos of some of the most intricate and perplexing crop circles. It informs via text, footage, videos and interactive map-displays about the history, facts, research, theories and ideas and farmers' views regarding the crop circle phenomenon.

The exhibition does not pretend to have found the final answer, but will show most of the key facts on the crop circle subject. Facts that might throw some light on the possible forces involved in this phenomenon. Facts that can be presented thanks to the work that has been conducted by many national and international researchers. Facts that make you wonder.

The focus of the exhibition lies in the - so far - unexplained part of the crop circle phenomenon. The man-made element of crop circles is also covered.
